AI, Smartphones and Lung Health: Breathless with Excitement Webinar with UCL Faculty of Medical Sciences

This talk with UCL Faculty of Medical Sciences will demonstrate how data from the sensors on your smartphone, such as the camera and microphone, can be combined with AI to recognise breathing in real-time and measure lung function.

You'll hear about how these data can be used to make breathing exercises much more enjoyable and interactive and look at a smartphone platform that is under development for patients with asthma and COPD. We will also briefly touch upon some of the limitations, and potential pitfalls, of using AI in health care. This lecture will be followed by a Q&A with speakers Prof John Hurst and Dr Luke Hale.

This will take place on Tuesday 14th May from 5pm – 6pm – click here to sign up.

How to Prove 1=0, And Other Maths Illusions with Gresham College

In this lecture, Prof Sarah Hart will show you some mathematical illusions: “proofs” that  $1=0$ , that fractions don't exist, and more. There are curious and important implications behind what's going on.

These “proofs” reveal some very common logical slips that can go unnoticed when we are trying to prove more plausible statements. And the stakes are high. As Sarah show you, once you have “proved” one false claim, you can prove absolutely any statement at all.

This will take place on Tuesday 14th May at 1pm – click here.
